BALBALASANG

Old Welsh Air | Score attributed on the source to Augustus U. Saboy

TUVYAN archival facsimile and reading copy

The following page reproduces the supplied score with restrained contrast and clarity enhancement. Original notation and markings have not been redrawn or silently corrected. The date on the source requires verification.

BALBALASANG
(Old Welsh Air)

Moderately

Augustus U. Saboy, 1/27/99

Selected lyrics — reading transcription

From the existing TUVYAN article. Not a verified transcription of every lyric underlay in the musical manuscript.

Balbalasang, it’s you!
They speak of your beauty,
They sing of your glory, and serenity;
The scent of your pine trees,
Your cool, gentle breezes;
Your clear, rushing rivers,
Oh, they say it’s you!

Chorus
Balbalasang, it’s you!
This hymn we sing to you.
We pledge we will ever be true;
God bless you! Amen!
We shall protect your name;
Keep your mem’ry aflame;
Balbalasang, it’s you
None other, but you!

Editorial status: facsimile prepared; complete note-by-note transcription and modern typesetting pending musical verification.